Irrigation Congress the Scene of the Ballinger-Pinchot Battle.

FIERCE ATTACK MADE UPON THE SECRETARY

at when private enterprise has done that it can there will still be hundreds thousands of acres of government land claimable only by government aid. The stern states should therefore be very lous of the perpetuity of the reclamation and of its constant increase.

Purpose of Issingly and I am sure which the government is undertaking to overcome is the establishment of small irrigation projects in localities where by such establishment the larger opportunities are destroyed, thus preventing enormous acres of lands from ever acquiring the use of water. It is number of families. The law is a beneficent one; it is another evidence of the broad and liberal policy which has ever attacked our actional government in the disposition of its public lands. It differs, however, from the simple homestead law in that it holds out inducer the various states of uniform legislation in the various states of uniform legislation in the various states of uniform legislation of construction, maintenance and operation, which is the cost of the lands. While it is possible that persons of limited means may successfully enter and acquire registed lands, it will generally be found that it is not a poor man's proposition, miless coupled with intelligent industry in agriculture.

Agriculture has ceased to be a though of the various states of uniform legislation of water and its beneficial use, and also legislation looking to the control and conservation of all available water power.

No further appropriation by the government is intended, or can be inferred from the act, and the responsibility for the disbursement of the funds and the construction of the works is placed upon the secretary of the interior. It must be recognized that the government is acting in the attract of a trustee of the people in the nature of a trustee of the people in the disbursement of this fund; that it must construct the works for the settlers and turn them over at cost, and has no right to recklessly or improvidently waste the fund; that cost means the cost which is incurred in the exercise of common business prudence, and this is likewise true of the expense of maintenance and operation.

"It is also the declared purpose of this law that the secretary of the interior in carrying out its provisions shall proceed in conformity with the laws of the states and territories wherein the irrigation works are situated and is bound by these laws in respect to the appropriation and use of the waters therein.

Hot Talk by Governor Pardee.

Former Governor Pardee then took the platform to deliver the address under the subject assigned to him. But he had no use for his manuscript. He opened by saying that he was for Roosevelt and the Roosevelt was a president who did things first." said he, "and talked about them afterwards. And that's the kind of men we would like to see in public office now."

Dr. Pardee told of the activities of former Secretary Garfield, who, under the instructions of Fresident Roosevelt, withdrew from public entry many tracts of land under the belief that these lands should be held for the people. Now, he said. Secretary Ballinger has again put up for entry these lands, and each tract has in its boundaries a water pawer site.
